RUSSELL STOCKIL

Head of Yacht Management at YachtZoo

BSc (Hons), MA, DProf, Dip Law, MNI, MRIN, ACI Arb, Solicitor

Truly effective yacht management requires a multidisciplinary skill set. As stakeholders in the industry, yacht management has a key responsibility to provide continuity throughout the lifecycle of the yacht with its changes in Ownership, Captain/Crew, Flag/Class, location/jurisdiction and multitude of service providers each with their own role to play and an agenda not necessarily aligned with the overall best interests of the yacht operation.

With 30 years (12 aboard and 18 ashore) in the industry and a wide range of experience and exposure to yacht operational challenges and industry experts, Russell is keenly aware of the importance of asking the right questions and sense checking the responses in the context of the big picture and the best interests of the yacht.

A qualified Captain, Marine Surveyor and member of the Nautical Institute, with over 200 onboard audits and technical inspections carried out on a global fleet ranging from 35 to 135 metres., carrying bespoke machinery and operational systems, as well as project management and oversight for large refit periods for high profile clients, Russell has had the good fortune to be involved with all of the moving parts and many layers of complex operations and can draw on experience and working examples to ask the right questions.
